OPERA GLASS THEFT PICTURE BALL ECHO

Loss Involving Hundreds of Dollars Traced to Pilferers Occupying the Best Seats.

ZELAYA SOON TO LEAVE

New York, December 20.—Are rich people so careless of wealth that they think nothing of appropriating other people's goods?

This is a question suggested by the plea of Lady Muriel Paget, who had charge of the picture ball society.

Dispatches from Washington yesterday were to the effect the State Department had been informed that Zelaya had made passage on steamer sailing Monday.

Nearly three weeks have passed since Zelaya was liberated from prison here following his apprehension at the request of the present government, on condition that he would leave the country within a reasonable period.

It is quite possible to offer an explanation for the strange disappearance of the opera glasses," said Lady Muriel to the correspondent, "but the extraordinary fact remains that the glasses have not been recovered, though cleaned ones were all returned. Those missing were among the ones sent to the occupants of the boxes and stalls."

It is hard luck, certainly, on Lady Muriel whose tremendous work in organizing the ball met with poor financial results. It is hoped the financial

SIR H. TREE, AT 60, TELLS HOW TO KEEP YOUNG

"Actors Don't Get Bored With Their Own Personality," Says the Titled Player.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.] London, Dec. 20.—Sir Herbert Tree, the famous actor-manager, philosopher and wit, celebrated his sixtieth birthday Wednesday, and while opening a large stock of birthday celebrations, found time to tell the correspondent that although he is sixty, he never becomes consciously older than he was at birth.

"I believe the actor keeps young," he said, "because he is somebody else for so many hours of every day. Thus an actor is not bored with his own personality. It is boredom, not the pace, that kills."

Herbert Tree is besieged with matinee engagements, some of them terms it, in "Joseph and His Brethren," in which Maxine Elliott shines brightly, said he hoped to pay another visit to New York early next summer.
